Keynote Title: “Nursing Aspects of Palliative Care”

Abstract: In 2009, the Turkish Ministry of Health, Cancer Control Department, launched a 5-year national cancer control program. This program includes five main initiatives: registry, prevention, screening and early diagnosis, treatment, and palliative care. Depending on WHO guide on Palliative care, the palliative care study group consists of 3 nurses, 3 physicians, 1 psychologist, 1 social worker and 1 palliative care physician developed the strategies to establish palliative care centers and improve awareness of palliative care. Today in many cities of our country, the establishment of the palliative care units has completed in 414 government hospitals and palliative care services are available not only for cancer patients but also for all patients who need palliative care. In 2010, many nursing specialties, such as oncology nursing, diabetes nursing, and home care nursing are identified in the scope of the nursing law. Palliative care nursing is not recognized as a nursing specialty. Only the roles and responsibilities of oncology nurses who give palliative care to cancer patient are identified in the nursing law. According this law different palliative care services provided by oncology nurses in Turkey. The oncology nurses who work with palliative cancer patient are responsible to:

- Provide an ongoing emotional support to patients and their families.
- Evaluate and manage the patients’ pain and other symptoms, and educate the patients and their families to allow them to control symptoms at home.
- Inform patients and their families regarding their access to hospital and urgent care services.
- Help patients to attain and maintain daily self-care and control, assist them in decision-making, and thereby increase their quality of life.
- Identify social support mechanisms available for patients and their families, and help them benefit from these support mechanisms.
- Inform patients and their families about the economic aspects of the disease, as well as the financial supports available for them.

There are no Higher Education Council (YOK)-approved palliative care education programs, curricula or graduate/postgraduate programs for oncology nurses on palliative care. Because of that the palliative care of cancer patients is provided by generalists nurse who have completed their undergraduate or graduate education.

Title: "Shift Happens-Be more Resilient to Thrive through Change.
Teaching and learning during Covid"

Abstract: For educators, lecturers, teachers and learners the COVID-19 Pandemic is a quintessential adaptive and transformative difficult step, one for which there is not any guidance that can lead them to able to know what to do, how to take a step and for suitable answers responses. Education leaders, teachers, lecturers must quickly give answers and feedback to learners – and with pre-prepared contexts and responses in mind. As the pandemic is still and unfortunately going on, in other words, runs its course, we all have to know and take a further step to run our courses since education never stops, should never stop. This discusses the period of a series which we found ourselves into and presents the results of a comparative analysis of emerging educational needs and responses as the pandemic unfolds across countries around the world. The whole aim is to facilitate the quick design process and implementation and application of adaptive preparation courses to the emerging education challenges, and to preserve learners' educational opportunities during and following the pandemic.

Bio: Arzu Soysal has got three degrees in Public Management, ELT and Education Management, two MA's in ELT in Near East University and in Cambridge University, before pursuing and doing doctoral research PhD, at London Metropolitan University. She has worked as an English teacher in different schools and universities. She has also studied different minor branches in universities like American University in DC. She has got a lot of publications, and has also contributed to lots of publications and researches.
